The Story of Brabant

The Noordbrabants Museum

From life in Brabant in Roman times to modern centrepieces by Jan Sluijters and JCJ Vanderheyden and, as from 18 January 2014, The Story of Brabant and the works of Vincent van Gogh: you can view it all in four thousand square metres of exhibition space in the magnificently restored Palace Rooms and the modern extensions by Bierman Henket Architecten.

The Story of Brabant

The Wim van der Leegte Room tells The Story of Brabant with historic objects, works of art and audiovisual presentations. Church silverware, attractive glasswork, sculptures and paintings by Vincent van Gogh tell the stories of the highs and lows of the population's daily life in the past six centuries.

Six time zones and two pavilions

The Story of Brabant links the past, present and future and makes The Noordbrabants Museum the only place in the Netherlands where visitors can learn about key moments of the history of Brabant on such a scale. There is something to see, hear and do for young and old alike, whether residents of Brabant or not. The Story of Brabant is made up of six times zones and also two pavilions which focus on the life and work of the two master painters with Brabant origins, namely Jheronimus Bosch and Vincent van Gogh.

Works of Vincent van Gogh

The new Van Gogh presentation in The Story of Brabant at The Noordbrabants Museum consists of nine paintings by Vincent van Gogh (1853-1890). This new exhibition includes works from the museum's own collection and items loaned from other museums. The works date from the artist's Brabant period and tell the story of his origins and his fascination for rural life.

State of the art

The Story of Brabant is located to the rear of the renovated exhibition wing. An impressive and classically styled staircase joins the large lower exhibition hall with this magnificence, state of the art exhibition space.
