

We installed outdoor showcases for two original segments of the Berlin Wall in Brussels. These two segments can be found besides the visitors' entrance to the Hemicycle of the European Parliament, a semi-circular debating chamber, where Members of the European Parliament sit to discuss and pass legislation.

The fall of the Berlin Wall was an emblematic moment in European history. A moment that marks the end of an era of division of the continent. After its fall, segments of the wall have been installed in various parts of the world, symbolising the importance of unity over division. In 2021, these two pieces were relocated to their current place as part of a project to protect them.

Bruns was responsible for the entire project from engineering to producing and the realisation on site. The biggest challenge in this case was obtaining permits to work, unload and block the area of operation. Good communication with all the involved parties has made it possible.

We are proud that we were allowed to replace an irreplaceable piece of history with great care in these specially developed showcases. In this way, the original segments of the Berlin Wall with a high historical value become publicly accessible in a protective manner.
